When I first purchased the app/paid features back when I was using an iPhone 5s this app was perfect. Back then iPhones had the 3.5mm headphone jack. What made this app my favorite choice was the ability to monitor the mic while recording which was super helpful and most other loop apps didn't have that at the time. Add the fact that it was so easy to export single stems or entire recording loops I found myself using this app more than literally any other app/feature on my phone. But now I am on my iPhone 13 and the only headphone input is via the lightning port which for some reason completely breaks the Mic Monitoring feature. When enabled the audio sounds like a static filled aluminum can. The biggest bummer is that just after switching to the iPhone 13 I can now no longer export anything from the app at all. I've tried exporting using every single option/app that is offered and once I tap any option nothing happens at all. It's a bummer. I understand this app is pretty old and it must be a whole other set of headaches being a developer but I just hope this somehow gets to you so you can see that there ARE people that loved this app and wish to see it updated it possible!
